In the following Collection will be found a vast variety of Interesting Relics, now brought together for the first time.

Foremost in interest will be found the Uniform worn by the Father of his Country during the war of the Revolution; the Camp Chest used by him, and the Cane presented to him by Benjamin Franklin; also, the Uniform worn by Gen. Andrew Jackson at the Battle of New Orleans.

Among the Flags will be found the celebrated one of Lawrence, with the words upon it, "Don't give up the Ship;" and many others captured by our navy during the last war with England; also, Flags captured by our Armies during all the wars in which the nation has been engaged.

In the Department of Ordnance, are Guns surrendered by Burgoyne at Saratoga—Cornwallis, at Yorktown; others taken at Vera Cruz; and several brought to America by Gen. Lafayette; and a Whitworth Rifle Piece, taken from Fort Pulaski, in 1862; and a great variety of Small Arms, illustrating the many improvements which have taken place since the introduction of the Cross-bow, up to the present time.

More deeply interesting to the present generation, perhaps, than all other objects, are the numerous Regimental Flags which have been carried by our brave Volunteers upon so many bloody battle-fields during the present rebellion. Hanging under them are many Flags captured from the rebels by the New York regiments. These sad memorials of the brave dead who have fallen in the cause of liberty, must ever be venerated by those who love their country and sympathize with it in its gigantic struggle for human freedom.

CATALOGUE.

FLAGS OF N. Y. VOLUNTEER REGIMENTS, BATTERIES, &c.

1. Flag of the Second Regiment N. Y. Volunteers.

Inscribed "Big Bethel, June 10, 1861; attack on the Merrimack, March 8, 1862; Fair Oaks, June 18th, 21st, 25th, and 29th, 1862; Glendale, June 30, 1862; Malvern Hill, July 1 and August 6, 1862; Bristow Station, August 27, 1862; Bull Run, August 30, 1862; Chantilly, September 1, 1862; Fredericksburg, December 11th to 16th, 1862; Chancellorsville, May 3, 1863."

2. Flag of the 2d Regiment N. Y. Vols.

3. Flag of the 12th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Presented to the regiment by the ladies of Syracuse, May 2, 1861, upon their departure for the field, and placed in the State archives after their return upon their expiration of service. The 12th was in the following battles: Blackburn's Ford, Siege of Yorktown, Hanover Court House, Gaines' Hill, Savage's Station, White Oak Swamps, Malvern Hill, 2d Bull Run, and Fredericksburg.

4. Banner of the 13th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Presented by the ladies of Rochester, and chiefly embroidered by Mrs. General Swan. The reverse was painted with the State arms, and the greater part is lost.

5. Flag of the 13th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Carried at the 1st battle of Bull Run by Daniel Sharpe, since Adjutant and Major of the 105th Regt. In the upper part of the flag are many holes made at that battle.

6. Battle Flag of the 13th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

With many bullet holes. This regiment was engaged in the following battles: 1st Bull Run, Siege of Yorktown, Hanover Court House, Mechanicsville, Gaines' Hill, Malvern Hill, 2d Bull Run, and Fredericksburg.

7. Flag of 14th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Presented to the State upon the return of the regiment from its two years' term of service. This regiment was in the Siege of Yorktown and battle of Hanover Court House, Mechanicsville, Gaines' Hill, Malvern Hill, and Fredericksburg.

8. Flag of the 17th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

National Colors much worn. Name of the regiment embroidered in white silk, and presented to the 17th by eight lady friends of Col. H. S. Lansing.

9. Regimental Banner of the 17th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Presented to them by the city of New York. The arms of the city are painted on each side.

10. Regimental Banner of the 17th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Of white silk, with rich bullion tassels and fringe. Painted with the State arms on one side, and the American Eagle and the U. S. arms on the other. The 17th was in the Siege of Yorktown, and the battles of Hanover Court House (where it captured from the enemy the first cannon taken by the Army of the Potomac), at Groveton (where it lost 13 officers and 250 men killed and wounded), Antietam, Frederisksburg and Chancellorsville.

11. Flag of the 18th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

And borne through all the battles of that regiment, viz.: 1st Bull Run, West Point, Gaines' Hill, Charles City, Cross Roads, Malvern Hill, Crampton Pass, Antietam, Fredericksburg, 1st and 2d battles, and Chancellorsville. A plate on the staff is inscribed as follows:—"Presented to the 18th Regiment N. Y. S. Volunteers, Col. Wm. A. Jackson, by his lady friends of Albany, June 1, 1861." The flag is inscribed in silk embroidery, "Rally around them."

12. Flag of the 24th Regiment.

Deposited by Samuel R. Beardsley, the last Colonel, inscribed on one side, upon the white stripes :

24th Regiment,
Iron Brigade,
1st Division,
1st Army Corps.

On the other side the red stripes are inscribed :

Falmouth,
Rappahannock Station,
Warrenton Springs,
Gainsville, Groveton,
Bull Run, South Mountain,
Antietam, Fredericksburg,
Rappahannock Crossing, Chancellorsville.

13. Designation Flag of the 24th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

14. Flag of the 26th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

This was transmitted to the Bureau of Military Statistics, with the following letter from the last Colonel :

"To Gen. J. T. Sprague, Adjutant General, N. Y.

"Sir : I have the honor to return to the custody of the State of New York, the colors carried by this regiment since June, 1861. They have been borne through every battle of Eastern Virginia, and under their folds have fallen five good and true men. * * * * We return them to the State from which we received them, well knowing they will be cherished as mementos of the living and the dead. They bear the marks of bullets, and of the blood of those who defended them, and, as such, will always be regarded with respect and veneration by those who are left to mourn the loss of their comrades on the field of battle.

Very respectfully, your obed't servant,
R. H. RICHARDSON,
Col. Commanding 26th N. Y. Vols.

This regiment was at the battles of Cedar Mountain, Rappahannock Station, Thoroughfare Gap, Bull Run, Chantilly, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, and Chancellorsville.

15. Flag of the 27th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Flag presented to Company G. by Mrs. Philip Church, of Belvidere, May 22, 1861, and same day by that company presented to the regiment. This was the only flag of the 27th, and was carried by them through all its term of service. It was in the following battles: Bull Run, Mechanicsville, West Point, Gaines' Hill, Goldsborough's Farm, Chickahominy, White Oak Creek, Malvern Hill, Crampton Pass, Antietam, and Fredericksburg, 1st and 2d battles. The bearer at Gaines' Hill was severely wounded. The flag has been many times struck by the enemy's shot. The larger holes were made by fragments of shell.

16. Flag presented to Company H, 27th Vols., May 16,'61.

By the ladies of Mount Morris. Returned by the Company to the donors, May 21, 1863, and by the latter presented to the Bureau of Military Statistics, January 9, 1864.

17. Flag of the 29th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

18. Flag of the 29th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

This regiment was at 1st Bull Run (in reserve,) and at the battles of Cross Keys, Warrenton Sulphur Springs, 2d Bull Run, and Chancellorsville.

These flags were presented by the city of New York.

19. Banner of the 29th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Presented by the city of New York, and bearing on both sides the city arms.

20, 21. Pair of Markers or Guidons, belonging to the 29th Regiment.

Presented to the regiment by the city of New York.

22. Flag of the 30th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

This regiment participated in the battles of Falmouth, Rappahannock Crossing, Gainesville, Groveton, 2d Bull Run, South Mountain, Antietam, and Fredericksburg. At the last battle of Bull Run, these colors fell during the engagement in the hands of ten different soldiers shot dead on the field. Thirty-six balls passed through the stars and stripes, and the staff was shot into splinters. Fourteen out of the seventeen line officers fell upon the field; among them was Col. Edward Frisby, of Albany.

23. Designation Flag of the 30th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

24. National Flag.

First displayed at Jamestown, N. Y., after the attack on Sumter. It was made by the ladies of the village within six hours after the receipt of the news, and displayed from the office of the "Jamestown Journal." Presented by C. E. Bishop.

25. Flag of the 32d Regiment N. Y. V., sometimes called the "1st California Regiment."

This regiment was engaged in the battles of 1st Bull Run, West Point, Gaines' Hill, White Oak Swamp, Crampton Pass, Fredericksburg, and Chancellorsville. This flag has engraved on a plate on the staff: "Presented to the 32d Reg't N. Y. Volunteers, June 28, 1861, by William Laimbier, Jr."

26. Banner of the 32d Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Presented by the City of New York to the regiment upon leaving the State in 1861, and placed in the State Archives upon their return in 1863. It had on each side the city arms.

27. Flag of the 34th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

This regiment was engaged in the Siege of Yorktown, and in the battles of West Point, Fair Oaks, Seven Pines, Peach Orchard Station, Savage's Station, White Oak Swamp, Glendale, Malvern Hill, South Mountain, Antietam, Ashby's Gap, and Fredericksburg.

28. Flag of the 37th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

This was received immediately after the regiment arrived in Washington, while encamped at the foot of East Capitol Street, on the east bank of the Anacosta, July, 1861. In camp or bivouac, it was always placed in front of the Colonel's tent. It has been used in the following battles: 1st Bull Run (in reserve,) Williamsburg, Fair Oaks, Glendale, Malvern Hill, 2d Bull Run, Chantilly, Fredericksburg, and Chancellorsville. It was also with the regiment in the Siege of Yorktown, and in several skirmishes on the Occoquan, in front of Yorktown, Richmond, &c.

29. Regimental Banner of the 37th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Green silk, with list of battles emblazoned. This flag was presented to the regiment by the city of New York, February, 1862, and has been with the regiment in front of Fredericksburg, and in the battle of Chancellorsville. The battles inscribed are Williamsburg, Fair Oaks, Fredericksburg, Glendale, Malvern Hill.

30. Flag of the 37th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Companion to the preceding. The staff bears an engraved plate, recording the fact that it was presented by the city of New York. The original flag of this staff, just previous to the murderous midnight engagement between the third corps and Stonewall Jackson's Division, near Chancellorsville, was removed by Lloyd, the bearer, and wrapped around his body, under his coat, lest it should be torn or lost in passing through the tangled jungle through which they were compelled to creep. But this brave and intelligent soldier was killed, and his body was buried by his comrades without suspecting that the flag was still around his person. Repeated efforts were made to find his grave, but without success.

31. Guidons of the 37th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Presented to the regiment by the city of New York.

32. Designation Flag of the 37th Regiment (the 1st Regiment, 3d Brigade, 1st Division).

This flag was carried on the march at the head of the column, the colors proper being in the middle.

33. The Flag of the 38th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

This regiment, known as the "Second Scott Life Guard," was engaged in the Siege of Yorktown and the battles of Williamsburg, Fair Oaks, The Orchard, Glendale, Charles City Cross Roads, Malvern Hill, Bull Run, Chantilly, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, and Gettysburg.

34. Regimental Banner of the 38th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Presented by the city of New York, and bearing the city arms.

35. Flag of the 40th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

With the word "Mozart" inscribed. This flag was presented to the regiment at Yonkers, July 3, 1861, by Hon. Fernando Wood, Mayor of New York, in behalf of the Union Defense Committee of the city of New York. The flag has been through the Siege of Yorktown, and the battles of Williamsburg, Fair Oaks, Robinson's Field, Glendale, White Oak Swamp, Malvern Hill, Haymarket, 2d Bull Run, and Chantilly, besides minor engagements. A detailed list of the color-bearers and guard accompanied the flag when returned to the custody of the State. Of these, seventeen are honorably mentioned, of whom five were killed in battle, six wounded, two died of disease contracted in service, and five were promoted for gallantry on the field. This flag was formally presented to the Legislature, April 24, 1863.

36. Flag of the 43d Regiment.

Deposited by Mrs. Col. Baker.

37. Battle Flag of the 44th Regiment. (Ellsworth's Avengers).

Deposited by Mrs. E. Corning, of Albany.

38. Regimental Flag of the 59th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Presented to the regiment by Ex-Mayor Kingsland, on behalf of the city of New York. Was in engagements at Malvern Hill, 2d Bull Run, Antietam, 1st Fredericksburg, Mayre's Heights, Gettysburg, and several skirmishes.

39. National Flag of the 59th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Was in engagements at Malvern Hill, 2d Bull Run, Antietam, 1st Fredericksburg, Mayre's Heights, and Gettysburg. Top of staff taken off by a shell at Gettysburg, and at Antietam all of color-guard killed or wounded.

40. National Flag of the 59th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

In engagements at Bristow Station and Mine Run.

41. Guidon Flags of the 59th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

In engagement at Bristow Station.

[The flags of the 59th Regiment have been deposited in the Bureau, by Lieut.-Col. Rugg, of that regiment.]

42. Flag of the 60th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Inscribed with the names of battles in which it was carried. A plate on the staff bears the inscription: "Presented by the friends of Col. Wm. B. Hayward, in the employ of Stone, Starr & Co." The division to which this regiment belonged is in the 12th Corps, now in the Department of the Cumberland, and has recently re-enlisted for the war. This flag was borne in the battles of Cedar Mountain, Bull Run, Warrenton Sulphur Springs, and Antietam. The flag was transmitted by Lieut.-Colonel Reddington, and is one of those formally presented to the Legislature in April, 1863.

43. Flag of the 61st Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Presented by the city of New York to the regiment, and used as a parade flag until the Peninsular Campaign, when it was laid aside until the spring of 1863. Since that time it has been used as the regimental flag. It was carried at the battles of Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Auburn, Bristow Station, and Mine Run. At Gettysburg the color-bearer and two of the guard were severely wounded. The regiment in this battle lost one officer killed and five wounded. Sixty-eight enlisted men were killed or wounded. Sent to the State authorities by Col. Nelson A. Miles, commanding the regiment, through the hands of 2d Lt. H. C. Williams, 61st N. Y. V., and received at the Bureau, Jan. 7, 1863.

44. Flag of the 61st Regiment N. Y. Vols.

And borne through the battles of Yorktown, Fair Oaks, Peach Orchard, Savage's Station, White Oak Swamp, Charles City Cross Roads, Antietam, Malvern Hill, Charlestown, Snicker's Gap, and Fredericksburg. At Fair Oaks the color-bearer, with four of the color-guard, were killed on the field.

45. Flag of the 64th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

It has been through the following service: Siege of Yorktown, Fair Oaks, Gaines' Hill, Peach Orchard, Savage's Station, White Oak Swamp, Malvern Hill, Antietam, 1st Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, and Gettysburg, besides several skirmishes, the most important of which were at South Mountain, Chancellorsville, and Snicker's Gap. At Gettysburg, July, 1863, the flag was carried by Chauncey McKoon, Co. B., who was severely wounded in the thigh, when it was taken by Edmund Stone, Co. D., who was killed. It was then raised by Sergeant Blackmore, who carried it through the remainder of the charge, and brought it off safe. Presented to the Bureau of Military Statistics, by Col. D. G. Bingham.

46. Flag of the 71st Regiment N. Y. Vols.

This regiment had been in the battles of Fair Oaks, Charles City Cross Roads, Malvern Hill, Bristow Station, 2d Bull Run, Chantilly and Fredericksburg, at the time this flag was returned to the State.

47. Flag of the 77th N. Y. Vols.

Presented to the regiment, Nov. 29, 1861, by citizens of Saratoga county resident in New York city. The painting represents the surrender of Burgoyne in Saratoga county, and the design is peculiarly appropriate, from the fact that the regiment was chiefly raised in that vicinity. In the painting, a Union Jack of England, with the stripes of the American flag, are on the right, and the national flag of the United States on the left. The former of these is understood to have been in use in the American army before the surrender of Burgoyne, and the latter is said to have been first displayed on that occeasion. The resolution in Congress, agreeing upon a flag, was made public, Sept. 3, 1777, and we have the authority of Col. Trumbull that the new ensign was used at Burgoyne's surrender, on the 17th of October, 1777.

The banner of the 78th was carried through all the services of the regiment, and its bearers were Sergeant Isaac Bemis, and afterwards Corporal Michael McWilliams. The 77th was at Lee's Mills, the Siege of Yorktown, Mechanicsville, Golden's Farm, Garnet's Hill, White Oak Swamp, Crampton Pass, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Mayre's Heights, and Gettysburg. In the charge up Mayer's Heights one of the color-guard was killed, and the flag was torn into shreds by a shell.

48. Guide Colors of the 77th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Presented to the regiment the same time with the preceding. There were originally two of these, of which the crimson was used on the right and the blue on the left. Nothing remains of the latter but a mere shred and a small piece of the bullion fringe.

49. Flag of the 20th New York State Militia (80th Regiment N. Y. Vols.)

Which formerly belonged to this militia organization before it entered the service. This regiment was in the battles of Rappahannock Station, Warrenton Sulphur Springs, Groveton, 2d Bull Run, Chantilly, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, and Gettysburg.

50. Banner.

Of the 91st regiment, deposited by Mrs. J. W. Harcourt, of Albany. Borne in the battles of Irish Bend, Bayou Vermilion, and Port Hudson.

51. Flag of the 96th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

This regiment was engaged in the Siege of Yorktown, and the battles of Williamsburg, Seven Pines, Fair Oaks, Chickahominy Swamp, White Oak Swamp, Railroad Bridge, Bottom's Bridge, Long Bridge, Jones' Ford, Charles City Cross Roads, Harrison's Point, Blackwater, and Kingston.

52. Flag of the 97th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Presented by the ladies of Boonville, N. Y., upon the departure of the regiment, and returned to the State, after being carried in the battles of Cedar Mountain, Rappahannock Station, Thoroughfare Gap, 2d Bull Run, Chantilly, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, and Gettysburg.

53. Flag of the 101st Regiment N. Y. Vols.

This regiment participated in the battles of Seven Pines, Peach Orchard, Savage's Station, Chickahominy Swamp, White Oak Swamp, Charles City Cross Roads, Malvern Hill, Groveton, 2d Bull Run, Chantilly, and Fredericksburg, before this flag was returned to the care of the State. It is one of those that was presented to the Legislature in April, 1863.

54. Flag of the 102d Regiment N. Y. Vols.

Formerly known as the "Van Buren Light Infantry." This regiment participated in the Defense of Harper's Ferry, Gen. Pope's retreat from the Rappahannock, battle of Antietam, and Surrender of Winchester in 1862, and has since been in active service. The flag is transmitted to the State by Col. G. C. Lane, and was formally presented to the Legislature in April, 1863.

55. Flag of the 130th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

This regiment served in the 7th Corps, at Suffolk, and elsewhere. The flag was sent without its history.

56. Flag of the 146th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

57. Flag of the 177th Regiment N. Y. Vols. (10th N. Y. State Militia.)

58. Banner of the 177th Regiment N. Y. Vols.

This regiment was raised in Albany, and served a term of nine months in the Department of the Gulf.

59. Flag of the———Regiment.

This was brought from the battle of Fair Oaks by the color-bearer, who was wounded. He found his way to the hospital at Savage's Station, and concealed the flag under his clothing. It escaped the notice of his captors, and was finally brought off by a surgeon, who was allowed to return home without being searched. Presented by Dr. John Swinburne, of Albany.

60. Flag of the 3d N. Y. V. Artillery (formerly 19th Regiment of Infantry.)

This regiment was engaged in the battles of Lovettsville, Fort Macon, Washington, N. C., South West Creek, Kingston, Whitehall, Goldsboro', Newbern, and at the Siege of Washington, N. C. The inscription of these names, with the dates, was put on by authority of the Commanding Generals.

61. Guidon of Howell's Battery,

Company M, 3d N. Y. Artillery.

62. Flag of the 7th N. Y. Independent Battery.

From Capt. Peter C. Regan. Presented by E. Carter, Esq., Newburgh.

63. Guidon Flag of 7th Independent Battery, N. Y. V.

This flag was shattered in the battle at Fair Oaks, by a shell from the rebels. Presented to "Washington's Headquarters, Newburgh," by Capt. P. C. Regan, of 7th Battery.

64. Flag of 11th N. Y. Independent Battery.

65. Banner of the 11th N. Y. Independent Battery.

With the portrait of General Havelock painted upon it. This was called the "Havelock Battery" when being organized.

66. Guidon of the 11th Independent Battery.

Inscribed with the names of the following battles, in which it has been engaged, viz.: Manassas, Chantilly, Mine Run, Gettysburg, Bristow Station, Chancellorsville, Rappahannock, and Fredericksburg.

67. Cavalry Guidon.

Formerly belonging to the —— regiment.

68. Signal Flag.

69. Designation Flag of the Headquarters of the 3d Brigade, 1st Division.

By a General Order issued March 24, 1862, the various Corps, Division, Brigade and Regimental Headquarters were designated by colored flags. The first Division flag was to be of red, the second of blue, the third of red and blue vertical, the fourth red and blue horizontal. In the brigades of the 1st Division, the first was red and white, the second white, red and white, and the third red, white, and red. Analogous combinations denoted the Brigades of other Divisions, and the flags of regiments were like those of their brigade, with the addition of a numeral showing the relative rank of the officer commanding.

70. Designation Flag of Headquarters of 1st Regiment, 2d Brigade, 1st Division, 3d Corps, used by the 38th Regiment.

71. Brigade Colors.

1st Brigade, 3d Division, 19th Corps (Department of the Gulf), borne at Port Hudson and in the Texan Expedition under Gen. Franklin. Presented by Brig.-Gen. P. S. Nickerson to an officer of his staff. Deposited by Mr. Chas. H. Raymond, of Albany.

72. Boat Flag.

Taken from the frigate Congress during the action with the rebel iron-clad Merrimac. Deposited by John H. Quackbush, formerly a captain in the 2d New York Regiment.

TROPHY FLAGS.

73. Rebel Flag.

BULLETS, &c.

216. Bullet that caused the death of P.— G.— C.—, of the 97th New York Regiment, at Antietam.

This man was wounded by a ball passing through the upper part of both thighs, breaking the bone of one of them. He was also shot through the flesh of the arm, and in his head, and in this condition was being carried from the field, when his comrades were forced to drop him and retreat. As he lay on the ground, with his head towards the enemy, this ball passed under the right collar bone, and outside of the ribs, about twelve inches. The manifest injury to an artery rendered death certain within a few days; but he seemed determined not to die, and he assured the surgeon that if his mother could only nurse him, he would recover. On the eighteenth day the artery burst, and he quickly perished by hemorrhage.

217. Bullet that lodged in the side of the U. S. Gunboat "Commodore Barry."

491. An Old Swiss Wheel-lock Rifle.

Invented about the Fifteenth Century, which took the place of the old match-lock gun. It is not in working order, and lacks the cock or hammer, and key for winding up the lock. When wound up, the pan cover is removed from its first position, that of covering the wheel, powder, and pan. The wheel rotates in the pan, and is surrounded with powder, when the lock is completed, and the gun about being fired. The hammer stands erect, and contains, instead of a common flint, a piece of sulphuret of iron (pyrites), and, at the pulling of the trigger, the lock unwinds or runs down, and the cock flies from its erect position, and the fire-stone (pyrites) strikes upon the revolving wheel above mentioned. The carved piece of iron back of the wheel is intended to protect the eye. This rifle has a pair of set, or double triggers, which, some have thought, were invented within the last hundred years.

740. Confederate Flag.

Captured by the Shepherd's Rifles, 51st Regiment of N. Y. Vols., Colonel E. Ferrero, at Fort Thompson, Newbern, N. C., 14th March, 1862.

741. Flag

Captured by Brig.-Gen. Grierson, April 31, 1863 (the last day of his famous raid), from Logan's Rebel Cavalry. So rapid had been his movements that five thousand men had been sent to a point, twenty miles distant, with the expectation of certainly capturing his entire command, consisting only of nine hundred men. He surrounded their camp at daylight, on Amite river, 15 miles N. E. of Baton Rouge, La., capturing at the same time a large amount of commissary and quartermaster stores. Exhibited by Gen. Auger.

SENT BY MRS. GEN. McDOWELL.

Captured at Lookout Mountain, November 24th, 1863, by the 149th N. Y. Vols.

748. Confederate Flag of the 18th Va. Infantry.

Captured by 2d Lieut. C. E. Hunt, 59th N. Y. Vols.

749. Guidon.

Taken by one of Gen. Couch's command at the battle of Sharpsburg, September 17th, 1862.

750. Confederate Battle Flag of the 30th Ark. Infantry.

751. Colors of a South Carolina Regiment.

Taken in the engagement at Antietam Creek, September 17th, 1862, by private T. Hare, Co. D, 89th Regiment N. Y. Vols., who was afterwards killed.

752. Battle Flag.

Taken at the battle of Malvern, near James river, July 1st, 1862, by Sergeant W. J. Whittock, 83d Pennsylvania Vols., Butterworth's Brigade, from a South Carolina Regiment, who piled up their dead to resist the attack of the Brigade.

MISCELLANEOUS.

753. Pants.

Taken from the body of Colonel Thomas Ruffin, 1st North Carolina Cavalry, at battle of Bristow Station, October 14, 1863. Button cut from jacket, curious copper coin, comb, and knife, pass to Richmond, bill of goods, and letter. He was an ex-member of the U. S. Congress, and son of the man that fired the first gun at Sumter. Exhibited by

754. Copper Pin.

Made from hull drawn from the steamer Fulton, after the explosion, June 4th, 1829.

755. Furlough of John Hildreth, 1814.

Exhibited by Dr. Fred. A. Farley, 116 Pacific st., Brooklyn.

756. Pipe from Mrs. Washington's Organ, Arlington House.

757. Livery Button from Washington's Coachman, John.

758. Piece of Laurel Root, Taken from Bull Run, 29th August, 1863.

759. Book from House of Rebel Doctor, at Centreville.

Exhibited by E. H. Smithson.

760. 32-pound Shell.

Received on board the U. S. Steamer Penguin, from Fort Beauregard, at the battle of Port Royal, S. C., Nov. 7, 1861. Exhibited by Mr. J. Wood.

761. This Flag

Was taken from a rebel family in Williamsburg, Va., by Dr. J. H. Thompson; it was made by one of the young ladies of the family for her affianced husband, a Captain in Gen. Wise's command, and given to him when he last visited her at the time of Gen. Wise's attack upon Fort Magruder, in April, 1863. In the hurry of his departure, he left this battle flag behind. Exhibited by C. T. Williamson.

762. Rebel Sabre.

Captured at Hilton Head.

763. Rebel Musket.

Captured at Bluffton.

764. Rebel Dragoon Pistol.

Captured at the taking of New Orleans. Exhibited by H. Heaton.

785. Rebel Pistol.

786. Sword and Scabbard.

Exhibited by Mrs. E. M. Kirkland.

787. Piece of a Shell.

Fired from Fort Wagner into the turret of the Monitor "Catskill," killing Capt. Rogers and Paymaster Woodbury. Exhibited by Alexander Simpson.

788. Fine Sporting Rifle.

Made by the Hon. C. T. James, inventor of the James rifle and projectile. Exhibited by James T. Ames, Chicopee, Mass.

789. This Bowie Knife

Was taken from the battle-field of Newbern, N. C., the evening after the engagement. In rebel parlance it is a Yankee Slayer; but its former proprietor evidently believed in turning it to the more profitable use of wood chopping. Exhibited by C. T. Williamson.

790. This Telescope

Was found on the porch of the first house reached by the troops when they landed upon Roanoke Island. When found it was adjusted to the right focus, and had evidently been used but a few minutes previously by the rebels to survey our approaching fleet.

791. Chair.

Made from a grape vine, growing on the farm of Ex-Governor, the rebel General Wise, by a private of the 15th Reg. Conn. Vols. Exhibited by Mr. James R. Gould.

FROM U. S. NAVY YARD, BROOKLYN.

792. Rifle.

Given by the Prince Regent of England to Hillis Hadji, or the Red-Sheik Prophet. He was captured by Lieut. J. McKeever, U. S. Navy, with the Chief of Ottesewas and two other warriors, near St. Marks, Florida, on the 3d April, 1818. A few days afterwards, the Prophet Chief was hung, by order of General Jackson.

795. Escopette.

From Castle San Juan D'Ulloa.

796. Highland Sword.

Found in Cherry Street, New York, at the site of the British Headquarters.

797. Sword.

Taken fron the prize steamer Ella Worley, by U. S. steamer Santiago de Cuba.

798. Belt.

This Belt was taken from the waist of Captain James Lawrence after he was wounded, and just before he uttered the memorable words "Don't give up the Ship," in the engagement between the British Frigate Shannon and the United States' Frigate Chesapeake, on the 1st June, 1813. This Belt will be found, in the Exhibition, attached to the large Flag "Don't give up the Ship."

799. Thimble.

From the English frigate Hussar, sunk at Hurl Gate, during the Revolutionary War.

800. Japanese Sword.

Presented to the Naval Academy by Lieut. Rogers, U. S. Navy.

801. Venetian Brass Piece.

Taken from the pirate Lafitte.

802. Pennant of the U. S. frigate Freeborn.

The first raised on the Potomac during the Rebellion, under which Captain Ward was killed.

803. Sword.

Taken from Col. Smith, aid to General Magruder.

804. First U. S. Flag raised at Yorktown.

By James Service, Co. G., Excelsior Brigade, after the retreat of the rebels.

805. Bomb Shell.

Thrown fron Castle Juan D'Ulloa, at the Siege of Vera Cruz, at our troops. Picked up by Lieut. Rowan, U. S. N.

806. Gun Sponge.

Used in the service of a six-pounder, in Dade's massacre in Florida, December, 1835, with staff. Lieut. Bassenger (who was the last man killed), rammed home the only remaining cartridge of the rounds which constituted the supply at the beginning of the action. Lieut. Duncan found this sponge, on the field of battle, about six weeks after the massacre.

807. Links, and a Portion of a Link of the Great Chain Stretched Across the Hudson at West Point, during the Revolution in 1778, to Prevent the British Vessels from Passing.

The Links are made of Iron Bars, 2½ inches square, average in length a little more than two feet, and weigh about 140 lbs. each. The Chain was stretched below the river at its narrowest point between the rocks, just below the present Steamboat Landing; it was hitched to huge blocks on each shore, and was buoyed up by very large logs, about sixteen feet long, pointed at the ends to lessen the opposition to the force of the current. The logs were placed at short distances from each other, the chain carried over them and made fast to each by staples. There were also a number of anchors dropped at proper distances, with cables made fast to the chain to give a greater stability; it was made at the Iron Work, a few miles distant, and stretched across May 1st, 1776. Some years since between twenty and forty tons of the chain were recovered from the bottom of the river where it had sunk. More recently one of the large floating boom derricks was sent up from New York for the purpose of raising the remainder, but the logs attached to it were so firmly buried in the mud, that the immense lifting power of the derrick was found unequal to the task, and but a small quantity was fished up.

808. 10-pound Parrott Rifled Ordnance.

809. 100-pound Parrott Rifled Ordnance.

810. 300-pound Parrott Projectile.

811. 200-pound Parrott Projectile.

812. 100-pound Parrott Projectile. Calibre of the Gun Exhibited.

813. 30-pound Parrott Projectile.

814. 20-pound Parrott Projectile.

815. 10-pound Parrott Projectile.

816. 100-pound Parrott Cartridge.

817. 1-pound Parrott Cartridge.

The two specimens of the Cannon exhibited are interesting, from the fact that they have each sustained one thousand service rounds of firing without injury. These trials were ordered by the U. S. Ordnance Department, and conducted by Capt. S. V. Benét,—the results being deemed highly satisfactory.

These Gun-Projectiles, Iron Carriages, &c., have been designed and introduced by Capt. Robert P. Parrott (formerly of the Ordnance Corps of the U. S. Army), whose name they bear, and are the result of a long series of experiments made by him in endeavoring to obtain, with safety and economy in artillery, the manifest advantages of the rifle principle.

The various Guns made up to the present time are of the following calibres, viz.:

3 inch, or 10-pounder; $3\frac{67}{100}$ inch, or 20-pounder; $4\frac{20}{100}$ inch, or 30-pounder; $5\frac{3}{10}$ inch, or 60-pounder; $6\frac{4}{10}$ inch, or 100-pounder; 8 inch, or 200-pounder; and 10 inch, or 300-pounder.

The 10, 20, and 30-pounders were supplied to the U. S. Government as early as May, 1861; the 100-pounders in November, 1861; the 200-pounders, early in 1862; and the 300-pounders, in January, 1863.

Over two thousand (2000) of these Guns of the various calibres, have been furnished the Armies and Navy of the Union; and they have been far more extensively used and severely tested than any other plan of rifled cannon yet known.

The use of an elongated projectile, much heavier necessarily than the spherical shot of the same diameter, with an adequate charge of powder, produces in the rifled cannon a strain too great to be sustained by cast-iron alone; and in these guns, additional strength is obtained by the addition of a heavy band or reinforce of wrought-iron, applied by a peculiar process to that part of the piece which is subjected to the great strain of the explosion, well ascertained to extend but little beyond the space in the chamber occupied by the charge.

The elongated projectile moving point foremost, encounters less resistance from the air than a spherical shot of equal weight, and consequently greater diameter; and though the latter leaves the cannon with greater initial velocity, this advantage is soon lost, so that after traversing 1000 yards from the gun, the two projectiles move at about equal speed; while at 2000 yards, the rifle shot of 100 pounds weight thrown from the 100-pounder, will be moving more rapidly than a round shot of 32 pounds, discharged from a smooth bore gun, both projectiles being propelled by an equal charge of powder.

The only means yet devised for keeping the elongated projectiles point foremost when in motion, is by giving it rotation about its own axis.. For this purpose grooves are cut in the bore of the gun, having a spiral or screw-like direction, known as the twist, and some portion of the projectile being made to move in these grooves, a degree of rotation is thus imparted to it proportionate to its velocity and the amount of the twist. The 100-pound projectiles make 6000 revolutions per minute, and the range of this gun, at 35 degrees elevation, is 8845 yards, or more than five miles.

To obtain the necessary rotation in his projectiles, Mr. Parrott applies a ring of brass to their base, which, although it does not project at all before firing, and therefore offers no impediment to inserting the shot in the bore of the cannon, is yet expanded or driven outward into the grooves by the force of the explosion of the charge, and thus compelling the projectile to follow the twist, gives to it the desired rotation about its axis.

The specimens of Projectiles both before and after firing, fully illustrate this.

Shot (solid and hollow); Shells (with both time and percussion fuses); and Case Shot, or "shrapnell," are exhibited; and together with the Iron Carriages, Sights, Elevating Screws, &c., have all been devised expressly for the Rifled Guns of this principle.

818. The First Bowie Knife

Belonged to James Bowie, of Louisiana, but who fell at Alamo, Texas, in 1836. This was the original of the large family of Bowie knives, Arkansas toothpicks, &c. This is the knife with which he slew Dr. Wright in the grand melee near Natchez, in 1828, in which six or eight combatants on each side were engaged; three were killed, and several desperately wounded. Bowie was shot down by Dr. Wright, who rushed upon him with a dagger, when Bowie seized him, as he stooped, and literally cut his heart in two with one blow of this weapon. It was wrought in a common blacksmith's shop in Red River. It was given to its present owner by Col. Bowie after the rencontre aforesaid, in acknowledgment of his attention to him on the field, and while suffering from the five wounds he received.

819. The Top Star of the Flag and Part of the Pennant of the frigate Cumberland,

Which were flying at the time she went down during the fight with the Merrimac. Exhibited by W. T. Jones.

820. Two Commissions.

One appointing Charles Monroe an ensign in the 4th regiment of Infantry, and the other appointing the same a second lieutenant, signed by James Madison.

821. Copy of the Last Rebel Vicksburg "Daily Citizen," of July 2d, 1863,

Previous to the entrance of the Union troops, under General Grant, into that city. This copy was printed from the types as they were found standing. The last paragraph, congratulatory of a better time coming, was added by its new Union editor.

From P. T. BARNUM.

822. The Identical Flag Hoisted on the Battery at New York, by order of Gen. Washington, Nov. 25th, 1783

At the evacuation of New York by British Troops. After the expiration of sixty-four years, it was unfurled to the breeze, at the laying of the Corner Stone of the Washington Monument, the 19th of October, 1847.

911. Boat.

Made by the rebels in Fort Macon, N. C., while that fort was besieged by the forces under Gen. Burnside in May, 1862. They endeavored to use it as a mail boat, and having deposited several letters in the box fastened to the deck of the vessel, they took advantage of a fair wind to send it across the harbor to Beaufort, where their friends were anxiously awaiting it. The sails were all nicely trimmed and the breeze fair for the voyage, but soon after it was loosed from the shore the wind changed, and drove the little vessel with its freight up the river, and directly under the bows of Gen. Burnside's Flag Ship, when it was discovered and taken on board.

912. Sword of Southern Manufacture.

From a Virginia battle-field. Exhibited by D. F. Seacord.

913. Two Regimental Flags of the 4th U. S. Infantry.

988. Coat, Vest and Breeches.

Worn by Washington when he resigned his commission to Congress, at Annapolis. Dec. 23, 1783.

"Having now finished the work assigned me, I retire from the great theatre of action; and, bidding an affectionate farewell to this august body, under whose orders I have long acted, I here offer my commission, and take my leave of all the employments of public life." Washington's Address.

989. The War Sword of Gen. Washington.

Carried by him through the Revolutionary War.

"These swords are accompanied with an injunction not to unsheath them for the purpose of shedding blood, except it be for self-defense or in defense of their country and its rights; and, in the latter case, to keep them unsheathed, and prefer falling with them in their hands, to the relinquishment thereof."—Washington's Will.

990. Washington's Camp Chest.

In daily use by him when in the field.

991. Washington's Writing Case.

Used by him in all the campaigns of the Revolution.

1008. Chinese Gengall.

Exhibited by Capt. W. Manson.

1009. Bayonet.

From the ruins of the fire of the Armory of the Tower of London. There were destroyed 160,000 stand of Arms. The melted gun metal adhering to the Bayonet shows the intensity of the heat it has been subjected to. Exhibited by C. Pontez.

GEN. JOHN A. DIX.

1010. The Flag of the Revenue Cutter McClellan.

In reference to which the order to "Shoot him on the spot" was given. When the Cutter was betrayed into the hands of the rebels, by Capt. Bushwood, it was laid aside, and was recovered when the fleet, under the command of Admiral Farragut, took possession of New Orleans.

1011. The Secession Flag.

Which was used on the McClellan while she was in the hands of the rebels.

For the recovery of these two Flags we are indebted to David Ritchie, now a Lieutenant in the Revenue Service. When the McClellan was set on fire, at the capture of New Orleans, by the rebels, Mr. Ritchie, who had served on her and left her at the time she was betrayed by Capt. Bushwood, went on board and brought the flags off.

The Two Swords contributed by Tiffany & Co., valued at Two Thousand Dollars, will be disposed of in the following manner:

The General's Sword.

By Subscriptions of One Dollar each, for presentation to the General of the Armies of the Union to whom it shall be designated by a plurality of the names of the subscribers.

The Navy Sword.

To be presented in like manner to the United States Navy Officer designated.

General's Sword.

The grip, oxydized silver; on the obverse side in low relief, a head of Mars from the antique, surrounded by a Trophy composed of military insignia and weapons of the past and present time; on the reverse side a figure of Victory, with a laurel chaplet in her uplifted hands, the joy sounding cornets at her feet, and over her head a diadem of Stars.

The Guard is slender at each point of departure from the grip, but midway swells into a rich medallion, upon which is sculptured the wrathful Medusa; at the back of the grip is the head of a Ram, identical with that familiar ornament of the sacrificial altar of the Greeks. The shell of the guard overlaps the mouth of the scabbard, and the space is filled by a fine relief representing the combat between Hercules and the Nemean Lion; the whole is surmounted by a spirited piece of solid sculpture, the helmeted head of America, from Crawford's fine statue; set in the helmet are Rubies, Diamonds and Sapphires, representing the National Colors. The scabbard is sterling silver, richly guilt; the ornamentation is confined to the bands and tip, which are composed of laurel leaves in richly carved relief.

The blade is straight and slender, and finely etched in gold.

On the scabbard is the inscription, "Upon your sword sits laurel'd victory."

Navy Sword.

The grip is of solid silver in the usual form; the lower part of the guard is formed by an eagle with outstretched wings—in the shell of the guard are inserted the initials U. S. N.—it then curves outward in the form of a rope, around which is twisted a spray of oak leaves and acorns, which terminates in a beautifully carved head of Neptune. The ornamentation of the scabbard consists of anchors bound by oak leaves in full relief. The blade is of fine steel, beautifully etched in gold. On the scabbard is the inscription, "Defend thee, Heaven, and thy Valor."

NOTE.

The numbers from 1 to 539, in this Catalogue, are deposited under the auspices of the Bureau of Military Statistics. They include the more interesting articles from Washington's Headquarters, at Newburgh, and several private collections which will be found credited in their proper place. Most of the flags embraced within the above numbers are the property of the State, and the collections from Albany are placed on exhibition under authority of the Legislature, expressed in two series of concurrent resolutions recently passed.

The Bureau of Military Statistics is an office established by law for the following purposes:

First. To collect and preserve in permanent form an authentic sketch of every person from this State who has entered the service of the General Government since April 15, 1861.

Second. A record of the services of the several regiments, including an account of their organization and subsequent history.

Third. An account of the aid afforded by the several towns, cities, and counties of the State.

A War Museum is being formed in connection with this office, at its rooms, No. 173 State Street, Albany. The aid of every person is solicited in the work of extending the collection of historical materials, and in adding to the collection. The articles of interest thus gathered will be open for public inspection, and, it is hoped, will acquire great value as souvenirs of this truly historical period.
